Galen Mell, a professor in the Division of Biological Sciences, and Arthur Miller, a professor in the Department of Health and Human Performance, both have been named Professor of the Month for May at The University of Montana.

Students nominate educators for the awards, which identify dynamic instructors who do something extra to make students want to learn.

Mell is retiring after teaching at UM for 31 years. Miller has taught at the University since 1985.

UM's Pentralia Chapter of the Mortar Board Honor Society is responsible for the monthly selections at UM. Mortar Board is a senior honor society comprised of motivated, self-oriented students.
